MODERN LUXURY SPOTLIGHT

Michelle Rohrer-Lauer

For three decades, Michelle Rohrer-Lauer has been in the business of bringing luxury home. Whether that is a single-room redesign or brand-new construction, she works with primary and second-home clients to create dreamy spaces. "Luxury design is not only top-quality materials and craftsmanship," Rohrer-Lauer says. "I want my clients to have the same mindset at home that they have when they are vacationing at a five-star resort."

The goal, of course, is to create homes clients can enjoy forever—and that means looking to the future. "I'm making a difference through my commitment to sensible, eco-friendly design," Rohrer-Lauer says. "I call my approach '50 Shades of Green.' As a member of the national Sustainable Furnishings Council, I want to help improve indoor air quality, protect natural resources and challenge our throw-away society." She even spearheads events with local builders, landscapers, vendors and architects that educate the public about eco-friendly design.

Michelle has received five ASID-IL awards and, in 2020, earned the Illinois Design Society/SustainableFurnishings Council "Designer of the Year Award" for sustainable design. "My clients would say I am meticulous about details—what I call the fit and finish of a space," Rohrer-Lauer says. "I compare it to owning a luxury car. When you sit in a finely engineered car, the seat hugs your body, the controls are within easy reach, and you don't hear outside noise. It seamlessly combines beauty and purpose—just like a professionally designed home."
